Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD) in Canada; key multidisciplinary perspectives

R 726.M358 2023

Edited by Dr. Jaro Kotalik, Chair of the Executive Committee of the Lakehead University Centre for Health Care Ethics and a Professor at NOSM University, and David Shannon, a lawyer and disability advocate.

The book Medical Assistance in Dying in Canada:
Key multidisciplinary perspectives was published by Springer in the International Library of Bioethics in the fall of 2023.

"With over 30 multidisciplinary chapter authors, including Canadian legal authorities, scholars, and clinicians with affiliations to over a dozen universities, this book offers the first comprehensive overview of MAiD," Dr. Kotalik said. "It delves into complexities and problems, and also provides various recommendations on how the MAiD program could be improved while suggesting relevant research topics that could be explored."

This book makes an important contribution to Canadian public policy on Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD) while examining opportunities for advocacy for health equity.

A national launch of the book took place in Ottawa on Tuesday, Sept. 19 at Cardus, located at 45 Rideau St., and a local event at NOSM happened in October. Congratulations to David Shannon on his important contributions to the publication of this book!

An interesting tale of Murder ... is now available at the Library!

Four bullets, four witnesses, four liars: the true story of a murder and the trial that followed / Brian Barrie; Toronto: Irwin Law Inc., c2023 KF 221.M8 B37 2023

On April 26th, 1988, a man was shot and killed in a remote cabin in rural Ontario.

Four witnesses were questioned by the police. Each one told a different story. Worse, they continued to change their stories, repeatedly contradicting not only each other, but also themselves. Ultimately, a woman named Mae McEachern was charged with murder. But what really happened that night?

Author Brian Barrie acted as Mae's defense lawyer at her murder trial. In this scintillating true crime novel, Barrie uses the trial transcripts, newspaper articles, and his own memories to piece together the story of who the victim was, who the witnesses were, and how the murder came to pass. He goes on to detail the gripping courtroom drama of the murder trial, where Mae's innocence was judged by a jury of her peers.

Grappling with themes of mental illness, domestic violence, misogyny, and disability, this astonishing exposé from Delve Books casts a light on how the Canadian justice system can further victimize those who are already vulnerable, while also laying bare the simple kindness and love that can exist between people, even in the harshest of circumstances.

Photocopying in the library

The library did not issue any invoices to TBLA members for photocopying throughout 2023. The cost of maintaining the photocopier in 2023 continued to be very affordable and easily covered by the library budget. All accounts on the copier were reset to "0" for Jan 1, 2024 and invoices for photocopying will resume if usage increases dramatically this year. And as per our regular practice, the library will continue charging visiting counsel for this service!
